

Benefits of Replication

What Different Kinds of Replicating Organizations Have to Gain from the Eden at Home Series....

Public Sector and Non-Profit Organizations Focused on Aging & Care

- Furthers your mission & promotes greater satisfaction within target populations
- Better staff morale, sense of purpose = higher retention
- More positive collaboration potential between staff and those you serve
- Creates an empowered public, better prepared to support your mission
- Identifies your organization as one that promotes creative grassroots solutions
- Puts your organization on the cutting edge of bringing person-directed care, via the Eden Alternative Philosophy, to home and community-based care

Home Health Organizations

- Greater client satisfaction
- Opportunities to introduce the general public to your organization, should you choose to offer Eden at Home Care Partner Workshops that are open to the public
- Better staff morale, sense of purpose = higher retention
- More positive collaboration potential between staff, between staff and clients, and between staff and family members
- More positive collaboration potential between clients and family members
- Shared language and philosophy that empowered staff, clients, and family members can relate to personally and stand behind
- Bringing the varied perspectives of different stakeholders together, such as staff, clients, family members, and the public, into EAH Care Partner Workshops creates even richer opportunities for shared learning and understanding
- Inspired, happy family members are more motivated to get involved
- Unique market niche with person-directed care philosophy

Turn the Page for More!

Assisted Living, Independent Living, & Continuing Care Retirement Communities

- Greater resident satisfaction
- Better staff morale, sense of purpose = higher retention
- More positive collaboration potential between staff, between staff and residents, and between staff and family members
- Shared language and philosophy that empowered staff, residents, and family members can relate to personally, stand behind
- Unique market niche with person-directed care philosophy
- Opportunities for residents to become actively involved as trainers, participating care partners or both
- Identifies your organization as one that promotes creative grassroots solutions
- Opportunities to bring public through your doors, should you choose to offer Eden at Home Care Partner Workshops that are open to the public
- Bringing the varied perspectives of different stakeholders together, such as staff, residents, family members, and the public, into EAH Care Partner Workshops creates even richer opportunities for shared learning and understanding
- Eden at Home can support and inspire every service you provide – from daily life, your home health services, to adult day services, and beyond

Hospitals or Organizations with Rehabilitation or Short-Term Patients

- Powerful opportunity to empower short-term stay patients and their family members with a shared approach to care that will ease and support their return home
- Better staff morale, sense of purpose = higher retention
- More positive collaboration potential between patients and family members
- Shared language and philosophy that empowered staff, patients, and family members can relate to personally, stand behind
- Inspired patients and family members may offer their support as volunteers
- Unique market niche with person-directed care philosophy
- Opportunities to bring public through your doors, should you choose to offer Eden at Home Care Partner Workshops that are open to the public
- Bringing the varied perspectives of different stakeholders together, such as staff, patients, family members, and the public, into EAH Care Partner Workshops creates even richer opportunities for shared learning and understanding
- Identifies your organization as one that promotes creative grassroots solutions